

Katherine Petersen

Pianist and chamber musician, Katherine Peterson, is a full-time faculty member at the Music Institute of Chicago and teaches at the Chicago Duo Piano Festival in the summers. She actively educates the next generation of young performers as a frequent guest clinician and masterclass specialist.

Petersen completed her early musical training at the Walnut Hill School for the Arts, her Bachelor of Music degree at the New England Conservatory of Music, and her Master and Doctor of Music degrees at the Schulich School of Music of McGill University, where she was a recipient of the Harold Helm Fellowship and a Schulich Scholar. Her principal teachers were Jonathan Bass, Vivian Weilerstein, Stephane Lemelin, and Sara Laimon. Visit Katherine's website, www.katherinepetersen.com, to learn more about her.